WACO SYMPHONY PERFORMS FESTIVE CLASSIC "HOME ALONE: IN CONCERT"

Watch the holiday favorite on the big screen while the Waco Symphony performs the film's unforgettable score live

WACO, Texas – The Waco Symphony is excited to kick off the holiday season with Home Alone: In Concert on November 30. This beloved holiday classic will be brought to life with John Williams' iconic and heartwarming score, performed live by the Waco Symphony Orchestra as the film plays on the big screen. The live music and choral performances will elevate the experience, making it a perfect holiday outing for the entire family.

Under the direction of Music Director and Conductor Larry Loh, the concert will also feature the Youth Chorus of Central Texas and the Central Texas Choral Society, who will join the orchestra to enhance the story of 8-year-old Kevin McCallister, who is accidentally left from his family's Christmas vacation and must defend his home against two bungling thieves.

Loh said that whether audiences know the film inside and out or are experiencing it for the first time, everyone will adore this concert. After the Waco Symphony's performance of the Jurassic Park score to live picture last year, Loh said that he was excited to see people enjoy the heart-warming, holiday film like they did with the dinosaur blockbuster.

"This is a great tradition," said Loh. "A lot of people have to watch Home Alone every year, and to watch it with John William's music elevated with two different choruses singing "Somewhere in My Memory" during the concert, that doesn't get any better."
